About

I am a development manager for a Dunedin, New Zealand based technology company working in the education and life science sector.

I've been a developer for over 10 years specialising in web applications on the Microsoft ecosystem and have since moved through project leadership, team leadership and management. In my spare time I blog a bit and do a little moonlighting as a professional consultant / developer.

In whatever time I have left, I play the drums and get a bit of exercise in playing squash and cricket.
