About

Stack Exchange's actions have been reprehensible. Monica Cellio, a popular and well-respected volunteer network moderator, was terminated without warning and portrayed to the press as misgendering trans people by Stack Overflow, Inc. All signs suggest this was an erroneous, if not malicious, decision not founded on fact, for which the company is completely failing to take any responsibility. This has caused an enormous and ongoing uproar in the community.

Monica and the community quite literally begged for some kind of response from the company either opening up a path to reinstatement, or justifying their decision to terminate her, for more than a month now. She made many good-faith offers
