About

I was very young at birth, but have progressively aged since. I failed my way into software development, and I am very grateful to the medium that saved me from a lifetime of busing tables. I currently develop custom internet based productivity software. In 1984 I was voted "Most Likely to Fail Miserably" by the most cherished members of my extended family. Now I have the habit of waving my paychecks in their collective face at family get-togethers. I am not bitter, just happy.
